

MEDIA RELEASE

NSW SES ADVISES OF POSSIBILITY OF RENEWED FLOODING OVER COMING DAYS

The NSW State Emergency Service is advising that a Flood Watch has been issued for inland New South Wales catchments.

A cold front, associated with a low-pressure system is expected to bring widespread rainfall from Thursday which may cause minor to moderate flooding along catchments including:

- Lachlan River to Cotton's Weir
- Tumut River
- Murrumbidgee River to Wagga Wagga

Due to these catchments being saturated and the Lachlan and Murrumbidgee rivers having current flood warnings, rises may be experienced faster than usual.

The NSW SES is encouraging communities to remain alert, prepared and safe over the coming days. Residents who have recently been isolated may be isolated again and should prepare for this.

Roads and low-lying areas may see inundation and livestock and machinery should be moved as required.

The State Emergency Service advises that people should:

- Keep up-to date with warnings via the NSW SES and BOM websites
- Move livestock and machinery to higher ground
- Prepare for possible isolation
- Monitor LiveTrafficNSW
- Never drive, walk or play in floodwater
- Make proactive decisions

For SES assistance, call 132 500. For life-threatening emergencies, call Triple Zero (000).

For media enquiries, please contact the NSW SES Media Officer at SHZ1PublicInformation@ses.nsw.gov.au

